POWAKADDY

FREEWAY II £449 (18-HOLE LEAD ACID BATTERY) £649 (LITHIUM BATTERY)

KEY TECHNOLOGY: Powakaddy has taken one of their most successful power trolleys, the Freeway, and added a mass of new features to create the Freeway II. The major new advancements include a multifunctional control pad, which is combined with a new LCD display (right). The control panel gives the ability to choose from nine different speed settings as well as sending the trolley 10, 20 or 30 yards before it automatically stops. The LCD screen can show the distance each shot has been hit, distance walked and battery power; all of this can be disabled during competition play. The power trolley is available with an 18-hole Lithium battery that is 75% lighter than a standard battery.

PLAYER PROFILE: Suited to golfers who...

- Want the latest in electric trolley design
- Find standard lead acid batteries too heavy
- Feel a distance measuring device is useful

The Freeway II has been a long time coming, but one round with this proves it's been worth the wait. The new features are very useful additions and easy to use while the lithium battery is not only lightweight but its design allows you to fold the trolley fully down while still in place – a very useful feature indeed. Powakaddy's trademark understated styling sets it apart from some of the more garish models on the market.
