

POWAKADDY TOUCH ELECTRIC TROLLEY

- ▶ KEY TECH Electric trolley that matches your pace via a simple touch operation
- ▶ AIMED AT Golfers who want fuss-free controls and plenty of features
- ▶ HOW MUCH £399.99 to £599.99, depending on the chosen battery

After stepping things up over the last few years following the brand's relaunch, PowaKaddy looks to have again made great strides forward with its latest Touch electric trolley.

As its name implies, the new model starts moving and matches your pace as soon as you place a hand on the ambidextrous grip and start walking.

It then continues to travel at the same speed, even when you take your hand off the handle. To make the trolley stop, you just lightly hold the grip and stop walking.

A clever LED display turns green when the trolley is moving and then red once it has stopped, while a button beneath the handle provides a discrete way to put it into standby mode during lost ball hunts or when waiting between shots.

Away from its headline feature, new low-profile wheels with yellow trims combine with yellow accents at the front, on the rear diffuser and on the handle for a modern look.

A number of popular PowaKaddy features make a return, including the Plug 'n' Play battery system that houses a lithium battery and eliminates fiddly connectors, a USB charging port for powering smartphones and a sleek, lightweight chassis with a simple three-way folding mechanism.

Available now, the Touch is available in a Polar White or Classic Black frame with yellow trim. Prices range from £399.99 to £599.99 for the extended lithium battery.

The trolley will match your pace hands-free as you walk until you touch the handle again

Lightweight chassis and frame feature a simple three-way folding mechanism

LAUNCH OF THE MONTH

Golf Monthly tests all its equipment exclusively with the Foresight Sports GC2 launch monitor

Edited by Joel Tadman